ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The committee wishes to thank the many kindergartners, mothers, and administrators who have made this study possible; also Ella Ruth Boyce and Alice Temple, former presidents of the International Kindergarten Union, and Caroline W. Barbour, President of the International Kindergarten Union, who have encouraged and given help in every possible way; also Mary Dabney Davis for the use of the material from her bulletin General Practice in Kindergarten Education in the United States. Credit for almost the entire material for the picture data is due Leo Brueckner of the Research Bureau of the Minneapolis schools, May Holmes, Kindergarten-Elementary Supervisor of Davenport, Iowa, and Elizabeth M. Cullen, Assistant Supervisor of Kindergartens of Detroit, Michigan. The committee thanks Dr. Lois Meek of "The American Association of University Women" for her help in collecting home data. The chairman wishes to thank the faculty of the College of Education of the State University of Iowa, and especially Ernest Horn, for their help in many ways. The large amount of clerical work would have been impossible without the help of Edna Durst.

STATEMENT OF PROBLEM

The problem was to find the vocabulary of normal children before entering the first grade. Only 2,500 words were chosen for this list although some 7,000 different words were found. However, many of these words occur only once. Words with so low a frequency have low reliability.

Because the twenty-fifth hundredth word and ninety-six more had a frequency of seven, 2,596 words are given in this list.

The KINDERGARTEN list was chosen as the key list because more data were used to compile it. The placement of each word in the KINDERGARTEN list is also shown in the PICTURE and HOME lists. This procedure shows where a word used in the kindergarten is placed in picture and home situations, thus giving an added check beyond its use in the kindergarten, to a word's place in the child's vocabulary. For instance the word "paste" is a high-frequency word in the KINDERGARTEN list. One might guess it to be a strictly schoolroom word. However, it occurs in the first 500 of the second 1000 in the PICTURE list and in the second 500 of the first 1000 in the HOME list. These occurrences in the PICTURE and HOME lists lead one to the conclusion that a child uses the word "paste" not only in the kindergarten but also in picture and home situations, thus establishing this word as one all children could be expected to know before entering the first grade.

SOURCES OF DATA

This list of words has three sources:

1. Words children used while attending kindergarten.
2. Words children used when stimulated by pictures.
3. Words children used in the home.

The running and individual words in each list are distributed in this way:

	KINDERGARTEN	PICTURE	HOME
Running words	489,555	306,639	97,072
Individual words	7,186	5,150	4,736

The term "running words" means the grand total of every occurrence of each word. The term "individual words" means the total of only one occurrence of each word.

Conversation in the kindergarten and home were recorded verbatim. A set of questions was furnished to stimulate the children's vocabulary for the picture data.

At a later date we hope to add these data:

1. To the KINDERGARTEN list:
  - a. Data from summer kindergartens because there may be words tied up with summer experiences not found during the school year.
2. To the PICTURE list:
  - a. Data from other types of pictures. There may be many well-known words in the kindergarten child's vocabulary not shown in this PICTURE list because there was no picture to stimulate the use of them.

3. To the HOME list:

- a. Data from other home situations.
- b. More data from same home situations.

4. More data from rural districts.

5. A number of detailed individual studies.

The committee also hopes for a more detailed tabulation of records which will show the parts of speech of each word and will also show different meanings for the same word.

METHOD OF TABULATION

Sentences and phrases used by children were recorded. From these records the occurrence of each word every time it was used was obtained. A word was determined as such if so called in Webster's International Dictionary, edition 1925. Proper nouns found in the "Biographical Dictionary" and in "A Pronouncing Gazetteer" of this same edition were called words. The following were also called words:

1. Two or more words which represent one concept in the child's mind and not in Webster's Dictionary as such, as "down town," "false face," "kiddie kar," and "bean bag."
2. Children's words, as "choo."
3. Proper names of more than personal interest not found in the dictionary, as "Humpty Dumpty."
4. Slang, as "gee."
5. Inflections of nouns, verbs, pronouns, and adjectives.
6. Contractions, as "I'd" and "we'll."
7. Commercial words that have not found their way into this dictionary, as "jello" and "Victrola."
8. Colloquialisms as "mhm."

Inflections were tabulated separately because the chairman decided that each inflection meant a shift of some kind in the child's mind. Words once put together could never be separated, but listed separately could be combined as one chose.

The committee regrets that the parts of speech of each word and the different meanings for the same word are not given. This proved impossible with the amount of widely distributed help used in tabulating.

SUGGESTIVE USES OF DATA

I. TO TEACHERS

A. In the first grade this list suggests:

1. Words to be used in beginning reading. Knowing a word's meaning eliminates one factor in learning in beginning reading.

2. Words for the teacher's vocabulary in talking to the children.
  3. A check on text-books for beginners. The teacher may find text-books with words whose meaning children do not know, or, on the other hand, with content so meager as to be uninteresting.
  4. Words the child is most likely to know when he enters the first grade. Learning words not in this list suggests:
    - a. Added richness of curriculum in situations not suggested by words in this list.
    - b. New angles to old experiences. For instance, "dog" is a high frequency word whereas "kennel" is not in the list at all. This suggests that whatever the children in kindergarten had been taught about dogs, little had been said about housing them.
  5. Spelling list for beginners.
  6. Words to learn to write first. Children are most likely to write first words whose meaning they know.
  7. Words first to be analyzed for their speech sounds.
- B. In the kindergarten this list suggests:
1. Words whose speech difficulties children should have mastered before entering the first grade.
  2. Words for the teacher's vocabulary in talking to the children.
  3. Words used in the ordinary kindergarten curriculum. Words beyond this list suggest possibilities of an enriched curriculum.
  4. A too exclusive emphasis of certain materials; as, the frequency with which such words as crayons, sand, and scissors occur are out of proportion to the natural activities in life outside the school.
- C. Of foreign children this list suggests:
1. Words the children should learn first.
  2. The curriculum activities in which these words would function.
- D. Of foreign languages this list suggests:
1. A beginning list for children.
  2. Lessons and interests in which these words should occur.

II. TO WRITERS OF BEGINNER'S TEXT-BOOKS

- A. Gives a list of words whose meaning children know before entering the first grade.

III. TO MAKERS OF TESTS, ESPECIALLY INTELLIGENCE TESTS

- A. Offers a list of words with known meanings.

IV. TO MOTHERS

- A. Suggests words their children should know. Mothers can easily check their children's knowledge of such a list. If a child does not know these 2500 commonest words, the mother should find the reason.
- B. Knowledge of only these commonest words should not satisfy the intelligent mother. She should so enrich home life that her children will steadily add new words to this list. An enriched home life may be had in many ways. For instance:
1. Taking time to visit with children about their experiences.
  2. Answering children's questions intelligently.
  3. Providing playmates with whom they may talk over their experiences.
  4. Many contacts with nature:
    - a. Trips to the woods at all seasons of the year.
    - b. A garden all their own, outside in summer and plant inside in winter.
  5. At least one pet of some kind.
  6. Contact with pictures, as:
    - a. Stereopticon sets.
    - b. In picture books of all kinds.
    - c. In magazines.
    - d. On walls of home.
    - e. In picture galleries.
  7. Trips:
    - a. To business establishments about which they have meager knowledge, as the telephone office and the fire station.
    - b. To any interests peculiar to the neighborhood such as the quarries.
    - c. On special occasions such as to circus parades.
  8. Contacts with good literature.
    - a. Reading to children from many sources, as stories, rhymes, poetry, content material such as biographies and travel material.
    - b. Encouraging children to retell this material.

V. GIVES A LIST FOR FURTHER SCIENTIFIC STUDY

- A. In phonetics.
- B. In comparing with adult lists such as the Thorndike<sup>1</sup> and Horn.<sup>2</sup>
- C. In comparing with reader lists such as the Packer<sup>3</sup> and Kircher.<sup>4</sup>
- D. In comparing with lists of words used by children in other countries.
- E. In comparing with lists from kindergartens which have very rich curriculums.
- F. In comparing with lists from kindergartens whose curriculums are based on different underlying philosophies and procedures.
- G. In the study of ways of tabulating children's vocabularies.

KEY TO LIST

The plan for placing a word according to its frequency is that used by Dr. Thorndike and Dr. Horn in their lists. That is:

1. First number gives the thousand in which word occurs. Since this list has only 2,596 words, only three thousands are indicated. The letter tells whether a word occurs in the first or second 500 of any thousand. "a" represents the first 500 and "b" the second 500 in any thousand.
2. The second number indicates the hundred of the 500 in which any word occurs. This is given only for the first 500 of the first 1000.

To illustrate: word "a" occurs in the first 100 of the first 500 of the first 1000 in each list. The word "about" occurs in the second 100 of the first 500 of the first 1000 in the KINDERGARTEN list, in the fourth 100 of the first 500 of the first 1000 in the PICTURE list, and in the second 100 of the first 500 of the first 1000 in the HOME list.

An X in any list means the word it follows does not occur in that particular list.
